Smith Kraus, United States, 2009. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 213 x 137 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. Announcing the fifth volume in the acclaimed series of new plays for young actors from the internationally celebrated Young Conservatory at San Franciscos American Conservatory Theater. The long-awaited next volume offers an amazing seven plays, including two that were specifically written for middle-school aged actors by A.C.T. Artistic Director and playwright, Carey Perloff and Melanie Case, resident playwright and director in the Young Conservatory. These plays, by stellar, award-winning playwrights, offer a diversity of themes and styles from a story set on the Earths Moon to the trenches of Petersburg, Virginia, during the American Civil War. Plays include: Moontel Six by Constance Congdon Set on the Earths moon in a not-so-distant future, a group of genetically-altered teens have been pursued into hiding by the residents of Moonstead Estates, a new gated community which hates having adolescents with questionable genes near their perfect children.War Daddy by Jim Grimsley From the writer of A Bird of Prey, this hard-hitting drama focuses on two groups of teens struggling to survive in an unnamed war-torn country. The wars have gone on for so long, the young people can t remember a time when there was no conflict Anatomy of Gray by Jim Leonard Set in the American heartland, before men loved machines, Anatomy of Gray tells the story of a town without a doctor who forges a special relationship with a young doctor in the midst of a crisis.Broken Hallelujah by Sharman Macdonald Set in the smoky hollows of war-torn Petersburg, Virginia, where two girls have a life-altering encounter with one Confederate and two Union soldiers, Broken Hallelujah explores the effects of the failing American Civil War on young soldiers.Copies by Brad Slaight From the...
