Read, Try, Decide, on the Charge of Washington, That Leading Federalists Are to Monarchy Devoted In the first place, it cannot be denied that there are men in the country, who prefer a monarchical, or aristocratical form of government to our democratical form. We all know that in our revolutionary war, we had many tories, who still advocated the cause of monarchy. And we further know, that after the close of that war, citizens were found deluded enough to still hanker after the trappings of monarchy. General Washington, in a letter to Mr. Jay, dated about 1785, says - I am told that even respectable characters speak of a monarchical form of government, without horror. And the papers of those times mention that thoughts were extensively entertained of introducing monarchy, and sending to England for the Bishop of Osnaburg, now the famous Duke of York, the second son of George III. to be our King. So far were these ideas carried, that in 1787, while the Convention for forming a constitution for...
