Is this the thing that makes the drumming in the spring he asked. Harry said that it was, and they scrambled through the bush for a couple of hours without seeing anything further, until they approached a swampy hollow with a steep hillside over which the undergrowth hung unusually thick. Pg 165 There ought to be a black bear yonder; they like the wild cabbage, said Harry. Well try to crawl in. Its a pity there isnt a little wind ahead of us. They spent half an hour over the operation, and Frank realized that trailing had its drawbacks when he found that it entailed burrowing among thorny thickets and crawling across quaggy places on his hands and knees. In spite of his caution sticks would snap and it seemed to his strung-up imagination that he was making a prodigious noise. At last, however, there was another sound some distance in front of him which suddenly became louder. A bear, sure, cried Harry excitedly. Going off up hill. Shoot if you can see it. Frank gazed intently ahead, but could see absolutely nothing, though he could hear a smashing and crashing which presently died away again on the slope. Then Harry brought down his rifle and turned away. You can generally hear a black bear, he said. He goes straight and rips right through the things a deer would jump. Hes a kind of harmless beast, anyway. Could we find a deer Frank asked, his hopes still high. Well try when weve had dinner, replied his companion. I havent seen any lately, though that doesnt count for much, because it would be possible not to notice one...
